BERTA GINER

“Through processes of accumulation, erosion, sedimentation, and dissolution, I treat the landscape as a stratigraphy.
Some works are constructed in layers, from which the landscape emerges; others lean toward its reduction and dissolution.

These movements are part of the same investigation. The landscape unfolds suspended between material presence and disappearance, between what is seen and what remains beyond our perception.”

Berta Giner

Berta Giner is a visual artist whose work explores landscape as a field of transformation shaped by matter, time, and memory.

Through processes of accumulation, erosion, and reduction, her paintings oscillate between material presence and disappearance, tracing landscapes that emerge as traces, atmospheres, and residual memories.

She has held solo exhibitions in Madrid and Barcelona and has participated in international art fairs such as Estampa, Art Madrid, LA Art Show, and Art Karlsruhe.

Her work has been exhibited in Spain, France, Germany, Italy, and the United States, among other places, including the MEAM Museum in Barcelona.

NUDE Series

The gesture is reduced to its minimum.
The image to emerge as a fragile trace.
Approaches the landscape
through dissolution and disappearance.
The image is reduced to its essence,
its trace; a fragile presence
of what once was.

Trace and memory.
